- b) There was also a precious jewel in the purse.

One day a rich merchant lost his purse. So he made it known that it contained two thousand rupees. He offered half of the money to anyone who found it.

Now it so happened that a workman found the purse and brought it to the merchant . Then the merchant began to feel sorry that he had promised to give away half his money. So he decided to pretend that there had been a precious jewel in the purse-as well as his money.

"I won't give you the reward", he told the workman. "There was a precious jewel in the purse. I'll give you the thousand rupees only if you return my jewel."

The workman went to the court and this is what the judge said to the merchant:

"You say there were two thousand rupees and a jewel in your purse. But in this purse there is no jewel. I say that the workman should keep the purse until its owner can be found. You should make known your loss and perhaps someone will find your purse."

The merchant stopped arguing and gave the workman his reward of a thousand rupees.

Sleep, My Treasure

Sleep, sleep, my treasure,
The long day's pleasure
Has tired the birds, to their nests they creep;
The garden still is
Alight with lilies,
But all the daisies are fast asleep.

Sleep, sleep, my darling,
Dawn wakes the starling,
The sparrow stirs when he sees day break;
But all the meadow
Is wrapped in shadow,
And you must sleep till the daisies wake!
